

PUBLIC NOTICE INPUT NEEDED

The Arizona State Legislature will be appointing a study committee to review public notices. Legislators are interested in learning about how you use public notices.

Answering the following questions will help the study committee make a decision that could impact your right to know.

1. Do you read public notices on local government web sites?
 Yes       No
2. The Arizona legislature requires cities, school districts and many other government agencies to print public notices in newspapers. Does this requirement provide you with information you would not get from other sources?
 Yes       No
3. Does printing public notices in newspapers help keep public officials honest?
 Yes       No
4. Printing public notices in newspapers provides independent, third-party verification that the notices are printed properly and on time. Do you think this verification is important?
 Yes       No
5. Some local governments also put their legal and public notices on government Web sites. If cities or school districts posted their notices on their Web sites, would you trust that the notices are accurate and on time?
 Yes       No
6. Do you believe state and local governments should publish public notices in newspapers?
 Yes       No
