

“At times like these,
don’t we all wonder about
open government!”

Okay, so open government isn’t something you think about while adrift on your air mattress. Relax. We’re fortunate. State law requires public notices to be printed in your newspaper to tell you about things that might affect you: the activities of Arizona government entities and private businesses.

Public Notices also are available free and searchable at www.ananews.com/pubnot, a statewide database of public notices created by the newspapers of Arizona in 1998 at no cost to government.
